

Introduction

The USC-SJTU Institute of Cultural and Creative Industry (ICCI) is the outcome of the strong partnership between University of Southern California (USC) and Shanghai Jiao Tong University (SJTU) that was forged more than a decade ago. As a joint institute between USC and SJTU, ICCI will draw high quality resources from both mother universities in fields of cultural industry to ensure that it will be a true innovator in delivering top class education, research, training, and social services focused on culture-related industries, as well as an interdisciplinary platform for diverse international cooperation and industrial collaboration.

Currently ICCI sets up a professional Master Degree Program for the major of Cultural and Creative Industry Management. This program aims to integrate the resources of the two universities and develop future interdisciplinary talents in the practical management of culture-and-creative-related industries through teaching basic theories and methods in economics, management, and culture.

The program lasts for two and half years. On completion of the required SJTU courses and thesis, and the payment of tuition and fees, the students will be awarded the Master Degree of Journalism and Communication by SJTU. On successful completion of the required courses of USC and the payment of USC tuition and fees, the students will be awarded the degree of Master of Management Studies (M.M.S.) by USC.

Cultivation Characteristics

As a problem solving and programs oriented school, ICCI would integrate global resources and form new course systems and educational programs based on the industry's value chain instead of traditional majors and disciplines. The supervisor group system consists of academic supervisors, industrial supervisors and international supervisors. Students in their two and half years' study would have internship chances in well-known culture-related companies, including new media, art, finance, film, network and many others.

In respect of talents training and scientific research, ICCI would integrate prestigious global resources and build its own world-class faculty team, by inviting both USC faculty and other international experts in fields of cultural and creative industries. Currently, ICCI has attracted outstanding scholars and researchers to teach at SJTU campus, including Professor Michael Keane of Chinese Media and Cultural studies at Curtin University, Professor John Hartley, founder of the ARC Center of Excellence for Creative Industries and Innovation and Director of the Center of Cultural and Science Technology Center at Curtin University, and Anthony T. McKenna of Film and Cultural Industries at the University of Nottingham.
